

Enter the digital world at the next Feed the Children Corporate Breakfast

Only five years ago, tweeting was something birds did. Facebook was only beginning and many people thought that Google was a typo.

Today, a digital presence is essential to surviving in the modern world.

Feed the Children Australia invites you to join us for breakfast to discuss the way the digital revolution is affecting the community sector, small business, and even highly successful international companies.

This is part of a special series of events designed to link corporate Brisbane with the community sector.

New Australian research has revealed one in four hospital patients are malnourished (with the numbers skyrocketing in the indigenous community).

This special event will show how you can help – just by having breakfast.

This isn't about helping children overseas – it is about helping kids who live right here in Brisbane and throughout Australia.

Special Guest Speaker Kate Eltham

Kate Eltham is the Chief Executive Officer of Queensland Writers Centre and the founding director of if:book Australia, the Institute for the Future of the Book.

She has previously worked as a small business consultant focusing on micro enterprises, non-profits and individual artists in the creative sectors.
